In a Noble Gesture, Pandit Shriram Sharma Acharya Renounced All Copyright on His Books

The God-realised sage Pandit Shriram Sharma Acharya, while he was still present in his physical body, renounced all copyright on his writings (books, magazine articles etc.) He did so, because he fervently wished for the life-giving thoughts of Vedanta to spread freely in society and to be available to each and every person who wished to access them. Such was his nobility, tremendous love and concern for the spiritual well-being of humanity. His works thus today belong to the public domain.
